

Report Foreign and Security WG

The upcoming review conference of the non-proliferation treaty (NPT) was the main topic of our WG group session in Barcelona.

MEP Reinhard Bütikofer made it very clear in his presentation that the review conference is really the last chance for the eroding system. The ball lies in the field of the nuclear weapon states to make some serious disarmament commitments.

Ahmet Atil Asici stressed in his presentation that the often raised argument against the withdrawal of nuclear weapons from Europe is not debated at all within Turkey.

Within the debate it became very clear that, even though the issue is so burning, there is hardly any public or even political debate within the European states about the future of the NPT regime.

The working group decided to ask committee for a common action around the review conference in May in New York.

Annalena Baerbock