Last but not least, it may turn out that some isolated individuals (e.g. foreign volunteers) under the Ukrainian flag are also perpetrators of some war crimes. When it comes to war crimes, there is no difference between ours and theirs. They are just perpetrators and victims. The second part of the amendment concerns the extension of the definition of war crime, which deals with the treatment of prisoners of war. As soon as a soldier of the opposing army puts down his weapon, it must be treated in accordance with the Geneva Convention, and any cruel or inhuman treatment is also a war crime.

3	AM-11-1	Europe Ecologie - Les Verts	the massacres and atrocities being carried out by Russia in Ukraine. Targeting civilians constitutes a war crime and these must be fully investigated with those responsible being held accountable and brought before the International Court of Justice.	Insert from line 10 to 13: the massacres and atrocities being carried out by Russia in Ukraine. Targeting civilians constitutes a war crime and these must be fully investigated with all those responsible, across the chain of command , being held accountable and brought before the International Court of Justice.	In order to bring genuine justice to victims, it is important to hold accountable not only the direct perpetrators of war crimes, but also the senior officers that ordered, condoned or failed to prevent these crimes. Indeed, research shows that the behaviour of military commanders and the discipline they impose on soldiers play a critical role in ensuring compliance with the rules of war. Atrocities are particularly common when they are part of a deliberate policy.

With a feminist foreign policy we mean acting as a negotiator for peace and preventing climate change, being a vanguard and an example in the world. Women and children suffer the worst consequences of war and crises, however, women are largely absent from the negotiating tables when peace is brokered. The safeguarding of education, health care and sexual and reproductive rights of girls strengthens the position of women and is thus at the core of a feminist foreign policy, alongside the struggle to slow down and mitigate climate change.	A feminist foreign policy is important, but is too often not defined. In order to advance the discussion we amend with a shortened definition from the manifesto of the Women's organisation of the Finnish Greens, Vihreät Naiset.

Russia's war massively threatens the food situation across the globe particularly hitting vulnerable countries in the Global South. We as European Greens are dedicated towards ending hunger world wide and thus call for an immediate increase in funding of the WFP, as well as humanitarian help and the end of speculations on food. We work towards long term sustainable and resilient agricultural systems across the world based on the principles of agarecology and supporting small-scale farmers.

If not stemmed promptly, a shortage in supply of wheat and maize could end up in being catastrophic and generate a second humanitarian crisis. For that reason, we want to act in solidarity with all those countries exposed and particularly affected by this risk - in Africa and beyond - and commit ourselves to provide them concrete support, while shaping a more accessible and resilient food system at the global scale.	As Europa Verde - Verdi, we believe is of paramount importance to stress the possible consequences of the conflict on the food system, especially in those countries that strongly rely on food imports from Ukraine and Russia, and to express to them our solidarity and support.

Among the exporters of these are also many countries that support Ukraine. Regardless of the support, one of the consequences of the Ukrainian crisis is an increase in profits from the sale of energy, food and raw materials, which will bring tens if not hundreds of billions of euros to some countries. It would be immoral for these countries to keep the profits of the war to themselves, as this would be reminiscent of the profits of war. Therefore, with this amendment, we want to achieve that the countries that inadvertently earned at the expense of the Ukrainian crisis use this earnings for the post-war reconstruction of Ukraine. To be perfectly clear - this amendment does not apply to the total profit from sales, but only to that part of the additional profit resulting from the war-related rise in prices.

48	AM-74-20	Partidul Verde Ecologist, Moldova	against Russian attacks.	Insert after line 81: Europe should stop funding Russian imperial aggression by buying Russian fossil fuels. National governments should do everything to do it right now, where it is technically possible without justifying their inaction by economic reasons. The economic costs of this are not comparable with the price of the humanitarian crisis and with the damage they will face from a possible Third World War. The fossil phase-out and the energy transition must be accelerated at all levels. All efforts must be made to stop Europe's dependence on fossil fuels now to prevent the continuation of war and future conflicts.	position to be confirmed and text to be clarified ("between 79 and 80")
