21	AM-61-1	Bündnis 90/Die Grünen	biodiversity policy is now more necessary than ever given the significant effect on food production and exports from Ukraine, resulting from the invasion.	Insert from line 60 to 61: biodiversity policy is now more necessary than ever given the significant effect on food production and exports from Ukraine, resulting from the invasion. Russia's war massively threatens the food situation across the globe particularly hitting vulnerable countries in the Global South. We as European Greens are dedicated towards ending hunger world wide and thus call for an immediate increase in funding of the WFP, as well as humanitarian help and the end of speculations on food. We work towards long term sustainable and resilient agricultural systems across the world based on the principles of agarecology and supporting small-scale farmers.	Proposed compromise wording for AM 61-1 (Buendnis 90/Die Gruenen), AM 61-2 (Europa Verde - Verdi) and AM 74-4 (GroenLinks) Include after line 61: "Russia's war massively threatens the food situation across the globe, particularly hitting vulnerable countries in the Global South. The blocking of the exports of cereals, sunflower seed oil and other Ukrainian products, as well as the destruction of farmers' fields, machinery and infrastructure, is going to afflict all those countries who rely on that agricultural produce, thus generating a second humanitarian crisis." Include after line 98: "We as European Greens are dedicated towards ending hunger world wide and thus call for an immediate support to all those vulnerable countries that will be hitten by the food crisis generated by Russia's war. In addition, we demand an increase in funding of the WFP, and concrete actions to end speculations on food. On a broader perspective, we believe that the EU must work towards the realization of a long term sustainable and resilient agricultural system across the world by, among other things, converting the land used for the production of feed to the production of food, and supporting small-scale farmers." Every measure should be taken to ensure the well-being and protection of all refugees and the prevention of incidents of human trafficking, while if such incidents do happen they should be swiftly prosecuted, with support provided to the victims. Insert after line 102: We do not lose sight of the core principle of political ecology that disputes should be resolved through peaceful means, respecting international law, including the sovereignty of states, established borders, and the rights of groups and individuals. We call on the United Nations and the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE) to redouble their efforts to bring about the end of hostilities and the withdrawal of the invading forces. This is of paramount importance first and foremost for the people of Ukraine but it also has grave repercussions for the people of Russia, of other neighbouring states and of those countries that rely on peaceful trade relations with Ukraine and Russia, notably for their food and/or energy security. Insert from line 108 to 109:	Proposal: Discuss at CAS

The starting point for such negotiations should be the withdrawal of Russian military forces from the breakaway regions, as well as from the territory of Belarus.	Proposal: Discuss at CAS
48	AM-74-20	Partidul Verde Ecologist, Moldova	against Russian attacks.	Insert after line 81: Europe should stop funding Russian imperial aggression by buying Russian fossil fuels. National governments should do everything to do it right now, where it is technically possible without justifying their inaction by economic reasons. The economic costs of this are not comparable with the price of the humanitarian crisis and with the damage they will face from a possible Third World War. The fossil phase-out and the energy transition must be accelerated at all levels. All efforts must be made to stop Europe's dependence on fossil fuels now, to prevent the continuation of war and future conflicts.	Proposal: discuss at CAS
