

Amendments to draft resolution "On Russia"

| Nº | Party | Line | Action | Current Text | Proposed Amendment | Explanation/Comment |
|----|------------------------|-------|---------|--|---|--|
| 1 | Bündnis 90/ Die Grünen | 6 | replace | Russia's military intervention in South Ossetia in 2008 (...) | "Russia's violation of international law and agreements concerning Georgia... " | |
| 2 | Bündnis 90/ Die Grünen | 12-13 | replace | "Russian government bodies have used well-funded disinformation campaigns and overt propaganda to influence elections in France and Germany. " | "Russian government bodies use well-funded disinformation campaigns and overt propaganda to influence elections in European countries such as elections in France and Germany and the referendum about the membership of the United Kingdom in the European Union. " | |
| 3 | EELV | 16-19 | replace | Working through certain Eastern European governments, often in exchange for unaccountably dispensed financial aid, the Russian government and intelligence services have gained a firm political and economic foothold in the European Union. By establishing a quiet presence in state bodies and security services, the Russian government has gained the capacity to indirectly influence decision-making in the European Commission and Parliament | The Russian government and its intelligence services try again and again to influence the political and economic policies of the EU and its Member States. Although it seems to no avail until now, certain political circles in the EU might not be indifferent to Russian funds and propaganda in its various forms. It is far from sure that the EU citizens will blindly follow this undercover propaganda. | These lines contain unverified allegations which should be avoided at all costs. |

| 4 | Bündnis 90/ Die Grünen | 16-21 | replace | "Working through certain Eastern European governments, often in exchange for unaccountably dispensed financial aid, the Russian government and intelligence services have gained a firm political and economic foothold in the European Union. By establishing a quiet presence in state bodies and security services, the Russian government has gained the capacity to indirectly influence decision-making in the European Commission and Parliament." | The Russian government and intelligence services insistently try to gain a firm political and economic foothold in the European Union and its institutions. In this regard, we are worried about the fact that some European governments support the Kremlin's policies rather than defend our common European values. | |
| 5 | Vihreät - De Gröna | 18-21 | delete | By establishing a quiet presence in state bodies and security services, the Russian government has gained the capacity to indirectly influence decision-making in the European Commission and Parliament. | | Unverified claim of Russian influence. |
| 6 | Miljöpartiet de Gröna | 19 | replace | 19: the Russian government has gained | the Russian government has attempted to gain.... | |

| Nº | Party | Line | Action | Current Text | Proposed Amendment | Explanation/Comment |
|----|-----------------------|---------|--------|--|--|---------------------|
| 7 | Miljöpartiet de Gröna | 30-36 | delete | We continue to observe worrying developments in Russian society and public life with great concern, and we believe that inequality, lopsided economic development, a systematic disregard for environmental protection and sustainability, and a permanent arms race will never benefit the interests and general well-being of Russian citizens. We advocate for a democratic, prosperous, globally engaged and sustainable Russia at peace with its neighbours, global partners and regional stakeholders. | | Off topic |
| 8 | FYEG | 32 | add | | crackdown on civil society | |
| 9 | FYEG | 32 | add | | blatant disregard for mass human rights violations | |
| 10 | EELV | 34 | add | and a permanent arms race will never benefit the interests and general well-being of Russian citizens. | and a permanent arms race will never benefit the interests and general well-being of the Russian citizens and might event prove to be a threat to the democratic values in the European Union. | Self explanatory |
| 11 | GGEP | from 34 | add | None | The European Green Party supports EU sanctions on Russia linked to both the annexation of Crimea and the war in the Donbass, and stands firm for their extension and/or broadening as long as these crises are not solved. | |

| 12 | GPEW | 36 | Add new paragraph from new line 37 | We advocate for a democratic, prosperous, globally engaged and sustainable Russia at peace with its neighbours, global partners and regional stakeholders. | The EGP also condemns the continuing violence and persecution against LGBTIQ+ citizens in Russia. This abominable treatment of citizens has led to disturbing situations like in Chechnya where the LGBTIQ+ community has been rounded up beaten and some instances murdered for their sexuality. The EGP finds such actions beyond reprehensible and sickening and believe human rights should be observed and afforded to all in Russia. The EGP condemns the Russian government for actively promoting violence against LGBTIQ+ citizens and pushing them outside of society. | Whilst it is right to challenge the Putin government's involvement in destabilising Europe. It is somewhat more pressing to stand up for citizens suffering directly under Putin's ideological policy choices which are denying basic human rights to the LGBTIQ+ community in Russia. We must fight for equal human rights as a movement and support marginalised groups in their fights against oppression. |
| 13 | Bündnis 90/ Die Grünen | 36 | add | | Therefore we urge European institutions and EU member states to deepen exchange with Russian civil society, academia, independent media und progressive opposition forces. Condemning and sanctioning official Russian elites for violations of international law should be paralleled by offering and showing Russian civil society and the Russian people better alternatives. | |
| 14 | FYEG | 36 | add | | We support the efforts of civil society aiming for such change | |
