

Conclusions of the Conference on the Future of Europe: Time has come to deliver and build Europe better

1 The European Union is living in unprecedented times. ~~# The Union~~ has never been more
2 needed and it has never needed to changes more than now.

3
4 The recent COVID-19 pandemic has cost millions of lives, deepened social injustices, and put the 5 cohesion of our societies at risk. It has shown the fatal impacts of our abusive exploitation of 6 natural resources and our short-term profit-driven economic model. ~~# The pandemic~~ has shown
7 even more clearly the unsustainability of our trade models and of the underfinancing of public
8 services. ~~# has~~ These past years have shown how vital European coordination and solidarity are,
9 and how there will be no just and feminist recovery without them.

10
11 As we were progressively recovering from this crisis, Vladimir Putin's regime conducted an
12 unprovoked aggressive, imperialistic and unjustifiable fully-fledged invasion of Ukraine – a war
13 against a sovereign and democratic country and a war – illegal war of aggression against Ukraine –
14 an attack against a sovereign and democratic country and against the core values of the European 15 Union. This war is showing at the greatest cost the need for a more effective Common Foreign and 16 Defence Policy, for stopping the use of fossil and nuclear energy, fuel greater energy independence,
17 energy transition and a more united and stronger European Union on the global stage.

18
19 This war also puts us, Europeans, in front of the mirror.

20
21 In bombarded Kyiv, in a country resisting to survive, President Zelenskyy did not only ask for 22 support, but he signed the request for Ukraine to join the European Union. This powerful choice,
23 that Ukrainians have repeatedly expressed, reminds us of what the European project is, how much
24 the values and principles on which it has been built matter, and how these need to be defended and 25 reinforced daily, both inside the EU and in the EU's external actions. In today's fast-changing
26 geopolitical environment, the EU needs to become strategically more autonomous to lower 27 dependencies and defend EU citizens' interests globally.

28
29 It reminds us why it is so important that the EU becomes stronger, more efficient, more united. This 30 will be only possible with citizens and thanks to them.

31
32 Many times in the past, the future of Europe was decided behind closed doors and citizens were 33 only consulted at the end of the process, after intergovernmental negotiations. This approach has 34 contributed to fuelling mistrust as well as overlooking citizens' demands and needs.

35
36 For us Greens, citizen participation is key in shaping the Europe we want in the future. This is why
37 we have supported the process of the Conference on the Future of Europe since day one. This is 38 also why we fought for real citizen participation and for an inclusive process.

39
40 We value and welcome the work and engagement shown by citizens, organised civil society and

42 members of parliaments throughout the duration of the Conference.

43

44 We welcome the conclusions of the Conference on the Future of Europe and the clear ambition
45 that citizens have shown to move Europe towards a green, social and democratic future.

46

47 We especially welcome those proposals that have been agreed to and that are key for a more 48 progressive and sustainable future for our continent, such as:

- 49 • Reducing dependencies from oil and gas imports through energy efficiency
50 projects; supporting affordable public transport, high-speed rail and 51 freight network, expansion of clean and renewable energy provision;
- 52 • Introducing Ddemocratic changes like the end of unanimity, i.e. the abolition of 53 vetoes, the right of legislative initiative for the European Parliament, the introduction of 54 transnational lists, the strengthening of transparency in decision-making, and a broader 55 right of access to documents, in particular in Council;
- 56 • Accomplishing Independence from oil and gas imports by replacing them with 57 renewable energies by speeding up the green transition, in particular through more
58 European investments;
- 59 • Reforming of the European fiscal rules, which are the baseline for the livelihood of 60 millions of European citizens, and a functioning and prosperous economy. The Stability
61 and Growth Pact must function for all countries and provide the necessary tools and 62 means to invest in decarbonisation, digitalisation, good labour, an affordable health
63 system, security and clean energy systems, etc. Our common European fiscal and 64 economic framework must work for the people and be democratic. Modernising our 65 fiscal rules is also a necessity to strengthen European sovereignty, and the ability to act
66 and to further strengthen the international role of the euro.
- 67 • Guaranteeing the Right to affordable energy, to access to the internet, to minimum
68 social standards, including minimum pensions, access to social housing when needed,
69 better and harmonised rights at birth of children and for families for marriage and 70 adoption;
- 71 • Ensuring that social rights take precedence in case of conflict with economic freedoms,
72 including via the introduction of a social progress protocol in the Treaties;
- 73 • Guaranteeing that large companies ~~should be taxed~~ are properly taxed, and that tax
74 havens are abolished in the EU ~~should be abolished~~;
- 75 • Securing the more effective protection of The Rule of Law ~~should be protected more~~
76 effectively, including by making the EU Charter of Fundamental Rights universally 77 applicable and enforceable;
- 78 • Making sure that European Trade agreements with third countries ~~should be~~ are in line
79 with the Paris Agreement and address serious human rights issues. Trade should 80 become a true means to an end, and no longer an end in itself.

82 The Conference on the Future of Europe process has confirmed that it is both possible and 83 necessary to include citizens in a participatory way. It has created innovative tools for citizens'
84 participation and for inclusive deliberation. It has demonstrated that building more democratic, ~~and~~ 85 accountable ~~and effective~~ institutions requires the introduction of new instruments for the 86 participation of citizens in EU decision-making.

87

88 We welcome the Conference's efforts to engage young people directly in its activities. However, it
89 is important this input is not forgotten. Youth engagement must not be a superficial act or void of 90 political power but rather the EU must continue to engage young people directly into its democratic 91 processes and held accountable to this. Young people are not the "next generation" but are here
92 now.

94 As the Conference on the Future of Europe ~~nears~~concluded its ~~end~~work, the European Greens:

- 95 • Call on all responsible institutions, including national governments, to deliver by 96 following up on the clear demands posed by the Conference.
- 97 • Call on all relevant actors to approve the reform of the European electoral law and fully 98 implement it in time to establish a transnational constituency and draw up transnational 99 and gender-balanced lists in the 2024 European elections.
- 100 • Call on all responsible institutions, especially national governments, and on all relevant
101 actors to make sure the conference on the future of Europe will lead to a constituent 102 convention aiming to develop a federal European republic, based on the Charter of 103 Fundamental Rights.
- 104 • Call for a permanent citizens' participation mechanism at EU level in order to allow, in a 105 systematic way, that citizens are properly involved in key policy decisions and have real 106 opportunities to influence them.
- 107 • As numerous demands require Treaty change to be implemented, ~~call on~~welcomes the 108 European Parliament's readiness to ~~use~~trigger Article 48 of the Treaty on the European 109 Union, and calls on the European Parliament to swiftly activate it in order to start ~~at~~the 110 Treaty change procedure via a European Convention and calls on the European Council
111 to follow up on it.
- 112 • Commit to baseWill, in its work on the common manifesto for the 2024 European 113 elections, take up a leading role in providing an answer~~on the~~to demands formulated
114 by the citizens in the Conference on the Future of Europe.
- 115 • Call on all Greens elected at the local, regional, national or European level to implement
116 the conclusions of the Conference on the Future of Europe wherever they have the 117 capacity to do so, and to actively communicate on its process and conclusions to 118 provide support, understanding and ownership across the electorate.
