The election of Donald Trump as 45th US President last 8 th November 2016 is a result that will not only entail a huge impact to those residing in the US, but, moreover, is likely to cause major turbulences on a worldwide scale. (AM6) President Trump represents, primarily, a threat to democracy, freedom and the rights of people across the world American citizens. The first months of his mandate already proved an agenda that restricts civil liberties, dismantles social rights and distributive policies, and criminalizes minorities, while also representing a real threat to the division of powers.		For the sake of shortening and as we consider that his election poses a global threat to democracy and freedom. Justification for replacement: His decrees affect also non-US citizens rights. Moreover the next sentence develops the anti-rights dimension of his agenda.

6	EELV	24-27	add	This helped populist parties and far right movements to gain ground and reach power in the US and in many EU member states using a rhetoric that has traces of the xenophobic propaganda used by movements at the origin of authoritarian regimes of last century.	This helped populist parties and far right movements to gain ground as witnessed in France with the rise of Front National and reach power in the US and in many EU member states using a rhetoric that has traces of the xenophobic propaganda used by movements at the origin of authoritarian regimes of last century.		We would rather have this inclusion here as it points that the FN is seeking power “globally” not only regarding the Presidency of the French republic.

8	EELV	29-32	delete	In the nearest future, we are facing an alarming situation in France with National Front trying to access the Elysée. All these forces that could be defined as the “Authoritarian International” have in common their will of dismantling the EU, which also appears to fits well in Trump's agenda.			We could admit keeping the second sentence attached to the preceding paragraph though the “authoritarian international” is an uncomfoting expression.

9	Finnish Greens	29-32	delete or move up before paragraph 4 (to line 20)				If the 5 th chapter has to be there, it would be more logical after discussing the situation in the US; → before the 4 th chapter. The text could thereafter concentrate on concrete policies needed to prevent the populist policies to gain more support.
10	Finnish Greens	29-32	add substance				why only talk about France here? (Poland, Hungary and some other EU countries...)

Create resilient alternatives to the social divisions and injustice plaguing our societies. This is done by relating our actions to the root causes of the insecurity and injustice, and by addressing the victims of this situation with true solutions. As the underlying reasons for unemployment and social injustice lie in neoliberal policies, globalisation, robotisation and similar issues, they have nothing to do with the scapegoated minorities. Socioeconomic security, equality, decent employment and public services are the best ways to rebuild the social cohesion, experience of inclusion and wellbeing within the society. To promote effective steps towards a resilient Union, with a more extensive re-distribution of wealth, higher ambitions on environmental and corporate tax rates, and effective action against corporate tax avoidance to prevent a race to the bottom between member states. The Eurozone needs to be more functional and democratic.		There are member organizations who aren't part of the Eurozone, but still experience the same negative development. Thus, the discussion needs to be broadened to the European economy as a whole.
